A NEIGHBORHOOD WITH BRIGHT VISION

THE PROCESS

A note from Visus Executive Director Brandon Champeau

In late June, we announced Visus, a new partnership formed to create a bold vision for the eastern edge of the University of Minnesota's East Bank Campus. We have named this project the Motley Vision. Motley presents a generational opportunity to re-imagine an area that has so much to build from but can be so much more. Motley represents the convergence of the campus, neighborhoods, sporting facilities, research and innovation, bounded by the Mississippi River and connected regionally by all forms of transit.

That's a lot to build from, and we have one chance to get this right.

WE NEED YOUR HELP

We are seeking community input and expertise related to a few key topics:

- Equity, Diversity + Inclusion
- Arts + Culture
- Health, Environment + Sustainability
- Research + Innovation
- Corporate + Startup Engagement

If you have interest in how these topics could influence our plan or would like to be considered for a specific council, please fill out this Google Form.

CONNECT WITH US

Good plans reflect the input of many stakeholders. We are seeking big ideas, feedback and dialogue. Help us start the conversation on Facebook and Twitter or read our first blog post about the places we've studied to get a sense of Motley's potential.

LET'S MEET UP

- Sept. 11: Prospect Park Land Use Committee
- Sept. 30: Open Streets
